Conservationists Inspect County Projects Friday With Regional Chieftain

Harry E. Reddick, Regional Conservator for the Soil Conservation Service in California and Nevada, landed Friday morning at Placerville Airport for a conference with Glenn Paxton, local project manager, and his technical staff. The call at Placerville was one of eleven being made by Mr. Reddick on an aerial inspection tour of California and Nevada.

While in Placerville, Mr. Reddick invited Ivan Lilley, El Dorado County Farm Advisor, George Volz, President of the local Soil Conservation Association, and Leo Ench, Secretary of the Soil Conservation Association, to inspect from the air the work done around Placerville. Glenn Paxton, project manager, Joe Polifka, engineer, and Kyle Thompson of the Erosion Control Practice Division, served as guides to the pilot during the flights.

Those who made the flight were quite impressed with what they saw. Mr. Lilley stated that the work of the Soil Conservation Service showed up so much better from the air than on the ground, and that he wished more farmers could view it as he did.

Mr. Reddick is being accompanied on the inspection tour by Walter E. Sykes, regional business manager, and Charles D. Jarrett in charge of information. Pilot Hackbarth was at the controls.

REFERENDUM ON LATE PEARS ENDS TONIGHT

Ballots Postmarked Up To Friday Midnight Qualify In Vote On Agreement

Late pear growers in California may vote on the Federal marketing agreement and order for their crop up to midnight of Friday, September 23, the regional office of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced today.

With the closing date for the referendum near at hand, hope was expressed by AAA officials that every grower of Anjou, Bosc, Comice, Clartgeau, Easter or Winter Nels pears in the Pacific Coast area would vote, no matter how small his acreage. Growers were also reminded that only ballots which are postmarked up until midnight of Friday, September 23, will be acceptable.

Although ballots were sent from Washington, D. C., to all known growers, additional copies of ballots and the tentatively-approved marketing agreement have been made available in the offices of farm advisors in all counties of California in which late pears are produced.

A two-thirds favorable vote of all growers taking part in the referendum, and signatures by shippers representing 50 per cent of the shipments of the six named varieties of late pears are required before the program can be placed in effect for the whole industry.

GODESBERG, Germany. (Copyright 1938 by United Press) — Negotiations between Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Fuehrer Adolf Hitler struck a snag today and a grave, tense atmosphere prevailed in this Rhineland center.

The scheduled second meeting between Chamberlain and Hitler did not take place this morning.

Instead, Chamberlain sent Hitler a letter. It was five hours before Hitler replied at 3:35 p. m., after constant consultation with his entourage across the river from Chamberlain's hotel. The prime minister began immediate study of the reply.

A Rose By Any Other Name Would Smell—

Consistency, thou art a jewel!
Thus spoke a wise man generations ago.

A short while back a man asked permission to install in my place of business a miniature electric crane which, if expertly operated, would reach out and retrieve small articles of merchandise for the operator at a cost of five cents. The city council evidently considered this a wicked gambling device because its removal was promptly ordered.

Now, does it not seem a little silly for officials to concern themselves with such petty matters in a town known in far places as a wide-open gambler's haven where thousands of dollars sometimes change hands in a single night?

I personally know of several men toiling in the lumber camps of this county who will, at the season's end, return to Placerville with several hundred dollars each and ere a month, passes practically all their money will have passed over the gambling tables of our little city. I know of other men with unpaid store bills and neglected families whose wages are a tribute to the goddess of luck.

This is no lecture against gambling and since men always have gambled and always will, I would place no obstacles in their way. However, it is a criticism of that type of official reasoning which decides that five cents risked in a vending machine which will pay if expertly operated is gambling, whereas a thousand dollars lost across a poker table is not gambling.

It may be that many of you readers are not aware of the fact that the City Council imposes a heavy license on every gambling table in town.

Strange indeed in the light of the State Attorney General's effort to ban all forms of gambling in California.

This would seem to cast our City Council in the role of abettor in what the Attorney General defines as an illegal business. In a town that practices many of the known vices with but little official restraint, this business of straining out the gnats and letting the elephants pass becomes almost funny.

Auburn Man Grateful For Ranger's Help

While hunting in Big Meadows during the week, my hunting dogs were irrevocably lost. After spending a half day looking for them, we had to journey to our home in Auburn without them. Upon our return, we notified the Forest Service at Georgetown and through the kindness of Mr. Berri-man, we located our dogs in Placerville last night and they have been returned to us today.

The forest service has rendered numerous services to our group during our experience hunting in the National Forest. We feel that this is the most signal service ever rendered to us.
Sincerely, G. W. DUFFIELD,

Already he has taken a jolt for each of those $15,000 he will get at the end of the season, and hundreds more lie ahead. But he didn't have a patch of tape on him, or a single bruise when I talked to him the other night.

He was chipper and happy and looking forward to the next game when his Pittsburgh team takes the field against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"It's tough but it's swell," Byron said. "And to be perfectly honest with you it's a lot tougher than I thought it would be. In a college game there never were more than a couple of fellows who shook you up when they hit you. But the pros start 11 guys who half kill you on each play, and when they get tired 11 more just a little tougher come in. But believe me when I tell you there is little or no dirty football. Oh, every once in a while somebody will give you a knee, but knees and fists aren't half as common as they are in college games. The pros hit you so hard they don't have to resort to rough stuff. Take that Dave Smukler of Philadelphia. No, on second thought don't take him. He'll kill you."

White didn't try to hide his indignation when I mentioned to him that there were rumors going about that his Pirate teammates were jealous of his publicity and salary and had not been blocking any too vigorously when he carried the ball.

"That's a lie if I ever heard one," he said. "Everyone on the team, from Art Rooney down, has been swell to me. The players give me everything they've got, and my failures are my own. I threw away that game to Philadelphia right at the start when I fumbled the ball, but there wasn't one word of criticism, or one dirty look from any of the players."

I asked Byron if he were as good a football player right now as he was when I saw him play for Colorado against Utah in Salt Lake City last fall.

"I'm smarter, but I'm not as good a ball carrier or kicker or passer. The opposition in pro football has something to do with that, of course, but so has the strain I've been under. You know, I have been exhibited like a freak since I signed up with the Pirates. Not that I'm complaining—if I paid $15,000 for a player I would exploit him to the hilt, too. But it's tough to play your best game when you feel that nothing short of a 50-yard run or a 75-yard pass will satisfy the customers. I find myself pressing

Rhode Island, the state worst hit by the hurricane which tore across Long Island and up through the New England states Wednesday afternoon and night.

The Connecticut, New England's largest river, and the Merrimack were brimming their banks and a flood crest was descending on Springfield, Mass., where an army of men had reinforced dykes and authorities had moved all residents from low-lying areas.

The Connecticut river crest was due at Hartford at noon and there was no certainty that it would not cause a major flood. Residents had been forced to leave their homes and emergency conditions prevailed.

In New Jersey, Roncoas Creek rose 14 feet in 24 hours and flooded eight towns. No one was drowned, but hundreds were made homeless.

In upper New York state, the Hudson and Mohawk rivers were brim full and still rising. It was feared that they would flood at any moment and hundreds were evacuated from low-lying sections of Troy, Waterford, Albany and Rensselaer.

But most pressing were the needs and the suffering of thousands crowded in refuge camps. They were on short rations and were threatened with disease.

So pressing was this problem that President Roosevelt, responding to the appeal of New England governors, ordered federal agencies—the Red Cross, the coast guard, the Works Progress Administration, the Civilian Conservation Corps, and the Army and Navy to mobilize their full facilities. Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, was to fly to New England from California to take personal charge of WPA activities.

WAR MAIL COSTLY

MENA, Ark., (U)—Postal service between here and Spain's battle fronts is slow and expensive. A letter written by Robert M. Pike, who is with the 67th division of the Loyalist forces, was four months in reaching Hugh Gore. The letter carried 82 cents worth of stamps on it.

all the time in an effort to live up to my reputation. I try not to, but I can't help it. You know as well as I do that no player ever was as good as my publicity made me out to be. Well, maybe Dutch Clark is, but I'm no Dutch Clark. He's tops."

Whizzer, 188 pounds of modesty, talks as if he were a flop. The figures don't bear him out. He is tied for the lead in scoring with 18 points, second in yards gained rushing with 118, and fourth among the pass receivers with seven snags for 88 yards gained.

Not bad for a youngster just starting out in the toughest league of them all.

SINGLE TAX PROPOSAL HITS SOURCE OF SCHOOL FUNDS

The main sources of revenue to keep California schools open are threatened by proposition 20 on the November ballot, the single tax. As a consequence schools may be forced to close unless it is defeated.

These were the statements today of G. L. Aynesworth of Fresno, president of the California School Trustees Association who urged all Californians, parents in particular, to work against and vote against the single tax.

He pointed out that school support comes from two main sources, the state general fund and from the local school district taxes levied on property. About 90 per cent of public school funds come from each one of these two main sources.

Europe Fears Actual War demanding a written pledge that Germany would not move into Czechoslovakia while negotiations are in progress.

Europe's "war or peace" crisis was intensified after fighting had broken out on the Czech frontier and France had poured "double strength" reinforcements into her Maginot line.

DEVELOPMENTS:
CZECH - GERMAN FRONTIER — Fighting broke out at Jachymov and many other places along the frontier as Sudeten free corps men clashed with Czech officials. Czech troops take over important border regions.

PARIS — France, alarmed by the hitch in negotiations at Godesberg, put Rhineland frontier forces at full strength and dug trenches in the Vosges mountain sector.

VARIETY FEATURED IN WEEKEND BILL AT EMPIRE THEATER

With "Paradise For Three" closing tonight, the Empire theater program for the weekend presents pictures on a wide variety of themes which, it would appear, must satisfy the amusement desires of a large number of theater patrons.

Saturday's feature presents Jack Holt in Columbia's "Reformatory," a gripping expose of life in a boys' "reform" school, with "Arizona Gunfighter" as the second picture on the bill to delight followers of western films.

Opening Sunday, with Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan and Lionel Barrymore, is "A Yank at Oxford." Taylor has the title role and the picture will be screened Sunday and Monday.

Taylor as the American college boy who wins a scholarship to Oxford and becomes stroke of the Oxford crew, is said to eclipse anything he has done before in the new role of the Yank who has to face customs and traditions he has never known at home and who emerges triumphant and with a new understanding of the sympathy and comradeship existing between the two English speaking nations.

Aside from presenting a story replete with excitement, humor, thrills and romance, "A Yank at Oxford" offers the American filmpgoer an unusual insight into the traditions and colorful life of English undergraduate life. Such unfamiliar episodes are shown as the Oxford-Cambridge track meets and boat races, the May Week cere-
